1. Overview

The Educational Master Plan provides direction to the college instruction and support service areas on what we want to accomplish over the next five years. This Plan was built on the previous 2008-2012 Educational Master Plan (adopted 9/30/08) using participatory, transparent planning process that is well established at Cañada. This planning process at the college includes the four planning councils (Instruction Planning Council, Student Services Planning Council, Administrative Planning Council, and College Planning Council) as well as the Academic Senate and the Classified Senate. Extensive involvement not only by the members of these councils, but also the campus at large was achieved during the development of the Plan, with over 130 individuals (students, staff and faculty) involved.

How will this document be used? The Plan will be used extensively to guide the college and create a cohesive sense of what the institution would like to become. As with our previous Educational Master Plan, this document provides the framework for how we make decisions on campus. We reference the Plan as we go through our annual planning and budgeting process and it serves as the basis for both resource allocation and resource reductions. When faced with major budget cuts in the past, the Educational Master Plan served to guide the college staff in determining directions to take.

How does it link to other plans? The Educational Master Plan will serve as a key reference for each of our programs and planning bodies as the annual plans are completed over the next five years. The various Planning Councils - College Planning Council, Instruction Planning Council, Student Services Planning Council, and Administrative Services Planning Council – will review the annual plans through the Educational Master Plan lens. And, the interconnected plans – Student Equity, Facilities, Distance Education, Technology, and Basic Skills – will reference objectives identified in this document. Additionally, the college's Educational Master Plan links with the SMCCCD (San Mateo County Community College District) 2008-2013 Master Plan and connects strategic directions to the district's mission statement and the strategic focus areas.

2. Review of the 2008-12 Educational Master Plan

The 2008-12 Educational Master Plan was developed using extensive consultation and input from the campus community and adopted in September 2008. It projected future needs for programs and services through the year 2012. It was used in the annual planning process to provide direction for improving our instructional programs and support services, and supported the College in fulfilling its mission.

The 2008-2012 plan had eleven broad college goals. Of the eleven goals, four were identified by the College Planning Council, using a campus-wide collaborative process involving a large number of individuals, to focus on as strategic directions. These four strategic goals were used extensively in guiding the budget reduction process which began in 2008 for the 2009-10 year where the college was faced with making a 40% reduction in sections and 2500 hour reduction in adjunct counseling services. It has continued to be used in 2010-11. The eleven goals are as follows with the "four" goals chosen as a focus are in bold type.

1. Base all curricular and programming decisions on data driven strategies.
2. Develop new programs and strengthen existing programs to meet community and business needs.

3. Develop programs and recruit students, responding directly to the current and projected demographic and economic trends in the College’s services area.
- 4. Improve success, retention and persistence of students who are in basic skills classes, including English as a Second Language.
- 5. Improve the persistence and transfer rate of students enrolled in transfer classes.
- 6. Support and strengthen the workforce program. Through research and sustained interaction with the business community pursue new programs and courses which reflect the dynamic, occupational needs of the Bay Area economy.
7. Increase the entrepreneurial actions by seeking new revenue sources.
8. Develop and strengthen external collaborative relationships and partnerships.
9. Build an educational environment that fosters passion for education and the leadership and the personal skills necessary for civic engagement and participation.
10. Provide new and expanded opportunities for faculty and staff development which support an atmosphere of excellence in academics and student support services.
11. Improve the number of certificate and degree awards.

A number of activities took place over the past five years to achieve these goals. A summary of these activities is included on the following pages.

3. Relationship to the District

Using a broadly representative process with input from all three colleges, the San Mateo County Community College District has adopted an overall strategic plan. The Cañada College staff and faculty have reviewed this plan and used elements in the development of their strategic and master plans. A “functional matrix” which describes who is responsible for the elements of this district plan was developed using the participatory governance process at the college. The matrix is as follows:

4. Educational Master Plan Planning Process

The college has a well-developed shared governance/planning process with excellent participation which involves broad campus representation. The process used for the development of the 2012-17 Educational Master Plan involved all of these participatory governance groups – the College Planning Council, the Student Services Planning Council, the Instruction Planning Council and the Academic Senate - as well as the instructional divisions, LEADSS (student services managers) and the Administrative Council and all-campus forums. The following table outlines the process used in the development of the Plan.

5. Environmental Scans and Emerging Trends

To help shape the strategic direction of the planning process the college closely analyzed the demographic and economic landscape within Canada College’s service area. Review of both the size and distribution of ethnic population revealed that Canada serves a particularly diverse population characterized by a high degree of clustering by ethnicity groups.

Likewise, the college examined the income distribution patterns within its service area and identified a high degree of variation in the median earnings of area residents.

Link to Environmental Scan Data: <http://blah>

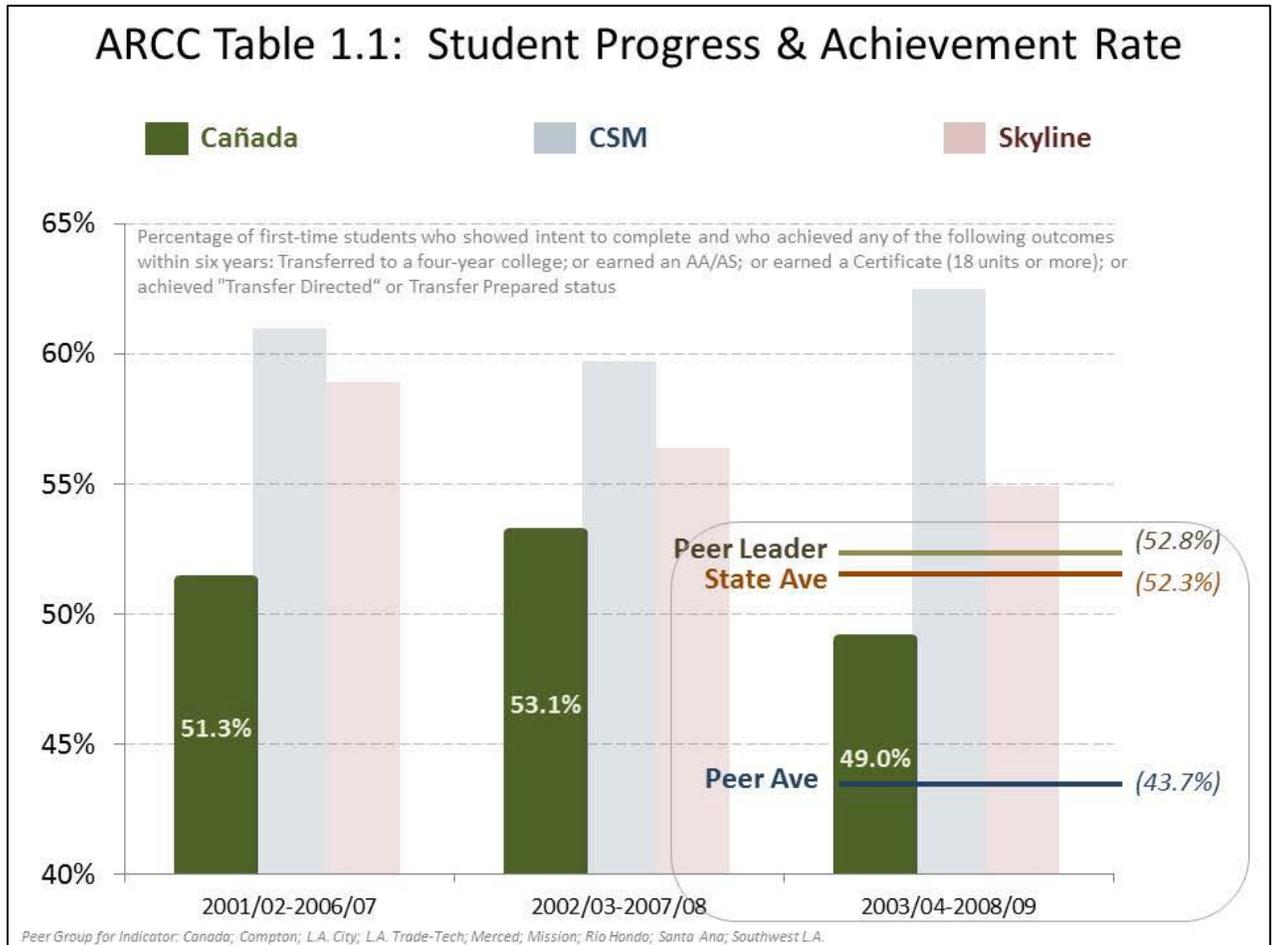

Information obtained from the environmental scan was then used to frame and examination of enrollment trends emerging around the San Francisco Bay Area. Enrollment trends were overlaid on the income and demographic patterns highlighted in the environmental scan to gain a better understanding of the broader forces and underlying trends that might be driving enrollment.

The college examined a variety of reports to help benchmark the college’s performance against several sets of meaningful benchmarks.

A host of reports and data packets profiling the size and scope of the college enrollment across a wide variety of student population were used to develop a starting point for planning discussions. Such data is collected routinely to support Program Review and the college’s Program planning documents were used extensively to map out both college wide and department level movements in key output measures.

Presentations at the “Listening Forums”

The internal data scan on Cañada College students presented at the “Listening Forums” in March 2011 revealed several salient highlights:

- Student headcount: has grown roughly about 15% since 2004
- Demographics/Gender: two thirds of Cañada students are female
- Demographics/Age: 3 in 5 of Cañada students are over 25 years of age
- Demographics/Ethnicity: About 40% are Hispanic with increasing numbers choosing multi-race as their grouping
- Demographics/Place of Residence: Significant variation in GPA by student unit load and location of residence
- Likelihood of Successful Outcome: Units enrolled in the semester makes a big difference in success
- Course-taking Patterns & Success:
 - 75-80% of incoming student place into pre-transfer courses
 - success rates in basic skills courses are roughly 15% lower than the college average

- students list costs and time to degree as their primary college concerns
- In any given term 43% of our students take a single course
- across all categories student performance has been shown to increase with the number of units taken

Emerging Trends: There are a number of trends occurring in higher education that have been presented in national and state reports. A summary of those trends was presented at the Listening Forums in March 2011 and include:

1. Growth in online enrollments will accelerate

“More students will attend classes online, study part time, take courses from multiple institutions and jump in and out of colleges.” “Colleges that have been slow to put courses online will almost certainly have to expand their online programs quickly” - Visions 2020 Report - CCLC

“They may sign up to take a class in person, and then opt to monitor class meetings online and attend whenever they want” - Chronicle of Higher Education Report

2. Colleges will need to offer those digital options in addition to face-to-face instruction

“Some student’s, often the most successful, recognize that they need the discipline of going to class at set times and places ... but even this group is preferring that classroom discussions, study groups and conversations with faculty be largely online.” “The challenge will be in providing them simultaneously and being flexible enough to meet all the needs of a diverse market” - Chronicle of Higher Education Report

3. Demand for non-semester based courses - Students will demand that programs be increasingly tailored to their unique circumstances

“Students have become increasingly restless with the traditional forms of learning. Students now crave personalization and convenience.” “Colleges that attempt to cram their styles down students throats on the basis that it is good for them may quickly find themselves the on the outside looking in.” - California’s Project Tomorrow Report

4. Student populations will continue to grow more diverse

“The location of a college and the demographic nature of its primary service area will be the most significant factor in determining its flow of enrollees in the next decade.” “Younger students entering college are increasingly choosing multi-race as their ethnicity and view their categorization as highly context specific.” - California Community College Chancellors Office

“Given the trends toward great diversity, absent effective interventions, colleges can expect to experience steady increases in the variability of performance across a variety of student segments.” - California Community College Chancellors Office

“In Silicon Valley the peak for high school grads was reached last year. A slow decline in that age group is expected through 2015 with a recover soon thereafter. Over the next ten years the largest growth will come from older students.”

“Given declining trends, if colleges expect to increase attendance, they may also need to look into the high-school dropout population.”

5. Strong demand for sustainability on campus and in programming - focus on environmental sciences.

“Growth in green industry jobs is expected to grow at a fast pace over the next ten years.

“Because the green movement often taps into the broader social concerns of students, there is an opportunity for colleges to rethink and cast many of their programs as green and build entire blocks of their curriculum around it.” - Chronicle of Higher Education Report

6. Decreased financial aid for students - Proposals this year to decrease the amount of federal PELL grants as well as the Cal Grants

“The socio-economic situation of students will have more influence in determining their choices related to college.”

“Ahead of their course work, balancing their debt load continues to be the #1 source of anxiety among students.”

“Students and their parents very often have unrealistic visions on how they will pay for college.”
-The National Report Card on Higher Education

7. Decreased funding for public higher education

Budget issues at the state and federal levels are leading to significant decreases in funding levels for public higher education

7. The Guiding Principles

The Vision, Mission, Values and SLOs are considered the Guiding Principles and provide direction for decisions made in planning, program development, staffing and facilities. These have emerged from a process developed by the College Planning Council and included considerable dialogue on campus through meetings and campus-wide forums.

8. Master Plan Strategic Directions

A concerted effort was conducted from February to May to develop the framework for the college's new Educational Master Plan. From the college-wide Listening Forums – where the campus community had the opportunity to identify the future needs of the college, the well-developed participatory governance Planning Process, and Division/Department meetings, the Strategic Directions for the college were identified this past year. These directions set the course for the college over the next five years.

9. Implementation: The Strategic Plan

Based on the four Strategic Directions which form the basis for the Educational Master Plan, objectives for the upcoming year have been developed. Four work groups met in July 2011 to review comments from the Listening Forums, as well as the Mission, Vision, Values and Strategic Directions, to identify the actions that need to be taken for implementation. As a result, objectives have been developed for each of the four areas: Teaching & Learning, Completion, Community Connections, and Green & Global.

10. Evaluation, Annual Report and Update Process

It is important to assess both the processes and outcomes for the Master Plan activities. Because this is an action-oriented master plan, an annual report on the activities will be created. From this assessment, revisions to the current implementation objectives will be completed annually. The annual report will contain an analysis of each of the objectives in the implementation plan. And, each year, the campus will review the vision, mission, values and strategic directions as part of the evaluation process.

Specifically, the assessment will take place as follows:

Area	Description of Evaluation	Frequency	Report to:
EMP Objectives & EMP Activities	A summary of the activities taking place for each of the 22 objectives will be developed. The assessment measures for each activity (included in the descriptions for each objective) will be completed. These are primarily “process” measures and will be used to determine if the campus is implementing the plan.	Each Semester	CPC IPC SSPC APC Senates
