

Program Groups – Discussions on Tuesday, Aug 16, 2011

Tasks to be done:

1. Reflect on meanings of assessment results for courses. Share your successes and challenges with your colleagues. Work on interpretation; look for patterns, and differences among courses. This dialogue among colleagues is the goal.

Questions to ask:

- Do the course SLOs reflect the most important outcomes of the course?
- Are they written in a way that makes them assessable?
- Are there alternative ways to assess these outcomes that would contribute insight to student learning?
- What changes might help the learning process?
- How do these courses together achieve Program Outcomes?

2. What questions remain about student learning in a course, and in the Program? Request help with getting evidence to answer these questions.

3. Decide which course SLOs you will be assessing this term. If needed, coordinate this among faculty teaching different sections of a course. Send an email with this information to the Faculty Lead for your discipline.

Campus policy: Each course will have at least one SLO assessed each term the course is taught. Over a 4-year period, every SLO in a course will be evaluated.

4. Decide how to spend the Program stipend, Inform your Dean of the decision.
